

AAUW Asheville

American Association of University Women Asheville NC

Founded March 17, 1915 | Second Oldest Branch in North Carolina

The Asheville Branch of the American Association of University Women traces its history from 1915 when sixteen mountain female college graduates organized what would locally become AAUW Asheville. Its work in Asheville has been ongoing and influential in the community, nation, and world, assisting women through such related projects as refugee relief and improvement of public schools. Its history is replete with names of local women who made significant inroads for women and girls. Learn more about our History, Projects, and Special Events; check out our Calendar, review our News/Announcements, or contact one of our Officers to see how we can work together to advance education and equity for all women and girls.

Welcome to AAUW North Carolina!

Who we are:

A group of women and men who work in North Carolina to carry out the mission of the American Association of University Women — advancing equity for women and girls through advocacy, education, and research.

What we do:

In communities across the state we

- ◆ work with girls (and boys!) in the schools to improve education through projects from distributing books to elementary school students to working with high school girls to integrate math and science into a fitness program
- ◆ collaborate with other members of the NC Women United
